Cornell, which was second to Syracuse last year, should be stronger this season. In the first place Courtney, the coach of the past 33 years, who was ill last spring, is in much better health and aithough but adviser to John L. Collyer, a senior, who stroked the last two crews but is now coach, should do much by his presence to bring Cornell back to its own. John Hoyle, the boatbuilder, assistant to Courtney for many season, lost his opportunity of succeeding his chief when he failed to get results last year. Cornell had an odd year in 1916. Harvard beat its varsity on the Charles over a course of one and seven-eighths miles by about two lengths, but in a two mile race with Charles over a course of one and seven-eighths miles by about two lengths but in a two mile race with Princeton and Yale at home the next week Cornell defeated the hitherto unbeaten Princeton boat, as well as Yale, in a stirring finish. Then Syracuse won at Poughkeepsie. This year Cornell meets Yale in a two mile race over the new Housatonic courst at Derby, May 19, and on May 26 rows Princeton upon Lake Cayuga.
